The Gwitchen Trilogy

(“The Little People, Named, the Gwitchen – The Second Gwitchen Journey – The Gwitchen Struggle For Peace”)

In ancient days, a white clan of peace left their land after a “battle of all battles” in search of a new land in the new world. The little people named the Gwitchen – who were protectors of the peace – had no notice that their white clan had decided to leave and found the white clan village deserted. As time went, the battles among humans became larger and it was at time the Gwitchen decided it was time for them to leave and search for the only peaceful humans they’d known to exist. The Gwitchen set their sails and headed west towards the land of Ice, in their quest to find the white clan and a land of peace. But, in their search they never found their White clan of peace so they decided to live in land that had never knew what a human even looked like. And, so they did.

Generations went by, until one day humans appeared not from one direction but two. They began to fight over the land and Kariboo so the little red men who couldn’t be seen by the human eye, whispered words of peace in the human’s ears while they slept, stole the human weapons and spoke, “I am a Gwitchen” in both clans ears. In the morning each clan feared they’d been defeated by the other clan in the middle of the night. So each chief thinking they’d been defeated trembled in fear walking towards the other chief with their hand raised in the symbol of peace. The two clans merged believing they were long lost brothers. And, the Gwitchen were the secret keepers of the peace.

As more generations of Gwitchen went by, one day the Gwitchen Council of Elders listened to words from the birds that the last of the white clan peacemakers was entombed in a cavern on Volcano Island far to the south. The Gwitchen could not believe their ears and so they began the “Second Gwitchen Journey” to find this last peacemaker. And, they did.

The New Gwitchen Colony on Volcano Island have constructed the Krystal Dome, named Beautiful

The Gwitchen created a new Gwitchen colony and built themselves the Krystal Dome named Beautiful on Volcano Island where they found the Ancient One named, John. But humans who dwelled in the region were not peaceful at all. In fact they were mean and cruel. The Gwitchen needed the Ancient One’s help after humans found a way to see the Gwitchen colony and attacked in a horrific manner. Little did the humans know the power of the Ancient One and the power of the word called Peace.

In the final “Gwitchen Struggle for Peace” the “Ancient One” named John after defeating the human clans told the little people that he’d someday return. And, he does come back to Volcano Island in a manner never before believed.
